

Words Matter!

“The fight is here; I need ammunition, not a ride.”

With those words Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky galvanized his people to stand and fight against the treacherous and brutal invasion by mercenaries of rapacious Vladimir Putin.

Words Matter!

“We have nothing to fear but fear itself.”

Those words gave Americans hope during the darkest days of the Great Depression.

“We shall never surrender.”

Those words steeled the British backbone for the fight against Hitler.

“Not one step back.”

Those words fortified Russian determination to hold Stalingrad.

“I have a dream.”

Those words challenged a nation to honor the Declaration that we are all created equal with certain unalienable Rights.

“Mr. Gorbachev tear down this wall.”

Those words marked the beginning of the end of the Soviet menace.

“This will not stand.”

Those words brought together the nations of the world to free Kuwait.

Words Matter, Mr. Trump!

“I’d tell the Russians to do whatever the hell they want.”

Those words reflect Donald Trump’s subservience to the Russian dictator and will forever brand him as the cowardly weakling who betrayed the Ukrainian leader that history will remember as one of the most courageous heroes of our age.

*“You stood there like a little wet noodle, like a little fanboy.
You literally sold out our country. What is wrong with you?”*

Arnold Schwarzenegger’s comments after watching Donald Trump fawn all over Vladimir Putin at a 2018 press conference in Helsinki, a dress rehearsal for his humiliating subservience on the red carpet he rolled out for dictator Putin in Anchorage.
