

Lethal Pete Announces U.S. Invasion of Turks and Caicos

Donald Trump and his lethal Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth changed the name of the Department of Defense to the Lethal Department of War (L-DOW), presumably in preparation for the planned invasions of Greenland, Canada, and Panama.

To make sure his lethal troops are sufficiently battle-hardened for the upcoming invasions, Lethal Pete announced that U.S. forces had just staged a sneak attack on Turks & Caicos in the Caribbean, which he called “a haven for left lunatic terrorists.” Initial reports were just coming in, he reported, but minimal casualties had been sustained in the landings and a beachhead was secured. “We expect to be on the outskirts of Club Med within days,”

When asked about long-term plans for the conquered islands, Lethal Pete responded that they would be converted into a detention facility to replace Alligator Alcatraz. “We’ll pack in illegal aliens far beyond the reach of left liberal lunatic judges who want to see these vermin continue to poison the blood of our nation.”

Lethal Pete concluded the press conference by dropping to the floor to do pushups – he was still going strong when the last reporters walked out of the room.

Lethal Pete promises to subdue Turks & Caicos and battle-harden our troops for the forthcoming invasion of Greenland and annexation of Canada
